T-O12

Dedicated both to the country's first president, a bon vivant named Theodor Heuss and to the revitalisation of its Stuttgart neighbourhood, three-storey nightclub T-O12 by Ippolito Fleitz Group and i_d Buero features a black and white interior, the urban theme of which is played out over mirrored surfaces and in dramatic white illustrations on walls and ceilings. The surreal illustrations riff on the icons of street-life, including street furniture, while the mirrors, reflecting pinpoint LED lighting and rectangular white stools, make intimate lounges feel spacious. Radiused white Corian bars feel like graphics themselves. Images of insects and carnivorous plants typically found in warm, dark places creep over the walls and ceiling of the lower level. A staircase connecting the levels is marked up with quotations from Theo himself.
