FLASH DANCE ▲ Set, Miami

From the owners of Miami haunts Opium Garden, Privé and Mansion, Set has an impressive pedigree. Kitted out by locally based French designer François Frossard, the club has no dance floor, but dancing on the ebony tables, Pucci-clad sofas or imitation tortoiseshell bar is encouraged, while a Tom Dixon Swarovski chandelier replaces the disco ball. MLF

JET SET

Above, colourful new South Beach nightclub Set, with Plexiglas tubes to house resident dancers, should prove especially popular during the Design Miami weekend, 7-9 December

VENETIAN BLINDER ▼ Dogado, Venice

Giving Venice's staid nightlife scene a much-needed dose of brio is Dogado, an unusually modern canalside edifice with an elegant terrace on the well-trodden Strada Nova. Inside, a trio of Murano chandeliers cast a muted glow on the cool clientele, who sip bespoke cocktails and top-shelf bubbly from Zafferano glasses and dig into a mostly grilled menu – or a choice of 70 mini-pizzas – before retiring to the next door nightclub. Farhad Heydari

VISION STATEMENT ▲ T-012, Stuttgart

Recently opened on Stuttgart's notorious party mile, three storey club T-012 is the graphic vision of two local companies, architecture agency Ippolito Fleitz Group and graphic designers i-d Büro. Stylishly clad in black and white, the club features extensive murals, huge mirrors, backlit walls and tongue-in-cheek graphics. The most happening event, Gerüchteküche, which loosely translates as 'on the grapevine', takes place on the last Sunday of the month. MLF
