Shining a light on desirable pieces from the design fairs

Peel to reveal

'Pegasus Home Desk', by Tilla Goldberg, for ClassiCon

This intelligent workspace is perfect for hiding away ever-multiplying digital devices. With smooth rounded corners, the frame and top are neatly upholstered in leather, with contrast stitching. Underneath the desktop, a recessed, burnished-steel front conceals a central, push-to-open drawer, while sections of perforated leather on the top peel smartly back to reveal a system of storage compartments.

Light angle

'John' articulated desk lamp, by Tobias Grau

Despite its unassuming name, this desk lamp has been seducing design fans and judging panels alike with its elegant stance and intuitive functionality. 'John' is fully flexible, thanks to polished aluminium joints that allow its flat, circular head to be precisely positioned. An optical lens ensures that the LED emits a glare-free light, the intensity of which can be adjusted by two dimmer buttons on the head.

His nibs

'Lamy 2000' pen, by Gerd A Müller; 'Lamy Scala Ti', by Sieger Design, both for Lamy

The stainless-steel 'Lamy 2000' pen by Gerd A Müller has been in production for over 40 years. The new 'Lamy Scala' series by Sieger Design is described by Michael Sieger as a 'modern archetype of a classic writing instrument'. The pens feature a chrome-plate front grip and clip in contrast with the matt black or titanium housing.

Perfectly pared

'AC12 Pen' tray, by Philipp Mainzer, for E15

Crafted from European oak, walnut or polished brass, the gently curved 'AC12 Pen' tray provides the perfect place for desktop stationery. Launched at IMM Cologne, the tray is part of a new range of wood and marble accessories from Mainzer's design brand, E15. The pared-back pieces, by Mainzer, Mark Braun and Jan Philip Holler, include a fruit bowl, chopping boards, paperweights and bookends.
